NSW Sport and Recreation Community Scholarship

Number of Scholarships:	One (1)
Value:	$11,250 allocated over the course of the degree
Duration:	Maximum four (4) years
Year of Scholarship:	2009

NSW Sport and Recreation contributes to the social well being and health of the community by promoting a more active lifestyle. It works with the sport and recreation industry and communities to maximise opportunities for participation in sport and active recreation, works with other government agencies to provide integrated solutions to community needs and supports the growth and sustainability of the sport and recreation industry.

NSW Sport and Recreation supports the commitment to Indigenous education in the area of Exercise Science and Physical and Health Education by sponsoring Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students through the UOW scholarship program. Promoting the development of Indigenous education in Exercise Science and sport will ensure there are trained professionals who can be engaged with and by the community to provide sport and recreation opportunities for Indigenous communities, groups and individuals and build community capacity in the broader community well into the future.
