Not on offer in 2004

Pre-requisites: LLB9100

Assessment: Class participation, assignment and research paper 4,000 words.

Subject Description: This course is concerned with the law controlling the sale and distribution of products and services, credit, restrictive trade practices and other aspects of the commercial environment. It examines the relation of production and consumption in the economy and the law, the policies and legal rules intended to protect consumers, and legal remedies and institutions which are designed to offer assistance to consumers. Consumer protection is related to business regulation and restrictive trade practices (competition law) since both these areas seek to supplement and support market and other mechanisms which ensure that consumers get the goods and services that they want, at a fair price, and without risk of injury or deception. There is also an examination of consumerism as a world-wide phenomenon with specific emphasis on the international consumer movement and consumer rights as well as anti-competitive concerns about intellectual property in the context of the multilateral trading system of the WTO.
