Firstly I would to extend my thanks to all those involved in the compilation of the 2006 Annual Report.

The start of session was heralded by some fantastic results for Student Central with over 5000 student enquiries answered in the first week.

Work is underway for the University to be compliant with the revised National Code which comes into effect on 1 July 2007. The Code will significantly impact on the University of Wollongong’s current and commencing students, policies, business practises and systems.

Preparation for the quality assurance audit is also under way as the University administration seeks to achieve the internationally recognised ISO 9001:2000 certification. The audit is due to be conducted in August of this year.

On the web front, the new look policy directory has a range of useful links and tools and Student Central has renewed the look of the “Current Students” page. Student Systems now have an intranet site and the ARD intranet site is currently under construction.

With Autumn session exams fast approaching and new enrolments to follow, the next couple of months will prove to be a busy time.

The 2006 University of Wollongong Annual Report has recently been completed and is available on the University’s website at: www.uow.edu.au/about/discover/UOW009578.html.

The Report provides an overview of the University’s performance and achievements in 2006 across a range of areas including governance, learning and teaching, research, community engagement, internationalisation, finance, and various organisational units. It is primarily developed to meet New South Wales and Australian Government reporting requirements.

Thanks are extended to all individuals and units who assisted in the provision of information and support in developing this report.

Any queries or comments regarding the Report should be directed to Julia Payne, Policy & Governance Unit via email: julia_payne@uow.edu.au or phone: 4221 5972.

National Code Compliance

The Education Services for Overseas Students (ESOS) Act 2000 and associated legislation is the legal framework governing the responsibility of education institutions towards overseas students. Part of this framework includes the National Code.

The National Code 2007 sets out the standards and procedures for how an educational institution provides education and training to international students.

In 2004 the Department of Education, Science and Training engaged an independent consultant to evaluate the Education Services for Overseas Students (ESOS) Act 2000. As a result of this review, the National Code, was revised.

The National Code 2007 comes into effect on 1 July 2007. The National Code 2007 will significantly impact the University of Wollongong's current and commencing students, policies, business practises and systems. The University is required to be compliant with the revised Code by 1 July 2007, and work is underway to achieve this.

The Major changes are:

- The continual assessment of international students study load to ensure they complete their course in the set timeframe listed on Commonwealth Register of Institutions and Courses for Overseas Students (CRICOS) and each students Confirmation of Enrolment (COE).
- Requirements for the University to allow for a 20 working day appeal period. A review of the University’s complaints and appeals processes is underway to ensure that all Faculties and Divisions are handling complaints and appeals in line with the new requirements outlined in the Code.
- The Code has an embedded Minimum Rate of Progress (MRP) policy where registered providers are required to implement an ‘intervention strategy’ if a student has failed, or is deemed not yet competent, in 50% or more of the units attempted in any study period.
- Requirement for the University to disclose to the designated authority, all providers involved in the delivery of a course, and their role in the delivery of the course.
- A reduction in time for international student transfers between registered providers from the current 12 months to six months. The time that students are required to remain at the University when they first come to Australia has decreased.

The new Code requires all staff are made aware of their obligations under ESOS framework and potential implications for students.

National Code 2007 is focussed on consumer protection embedded in provider requirements. The additional protections in the Code for international students are currently being implemented to ensure the transparency of delivery of University of Wollongong programs to international students.

Course Rules

The General Course Rules govern registration, enrolment, progression through and qualifications for courses offered by the University and are to be read in conjunction with other rules, codes of practices and policies.

The University’s Course Rules are under ongoing review. Amendments to the Rules may be triggered by changes to legislation, the requirement for the University to meet compliance and standards, urgency of a particular issue or a critical mass of issues.

The pathway of approval flows through such committees as Education Policy Review Sub-Committee, University Education Committee, Senate Standing, Academic Senate and final approval by Council. This endorsement process allows valuable stakeholder input to ensure quality course rules are implemented.

The 2007 Course Rules can be found online at: www.uow.edu.au/handbook/

For further information about Course Rules, please contact Jenny Reiners on 4221 3216 or via email: jreiners@uow.edu.au.
