

Dr. Luke Nottage is a Senior Lecturer at the University of Sydney Faculty of Law. He is an Honorary Senior Fellow at the Centre for Comparative Law and Development Studies in Asia and the Pacific. Luke is a founding co-director of the Australian Network for Japanese Law (ANJeL). He holds a Ph.D. from Victoria University of Wellington and an LL.M from Kyoto University. He has written one book ("Product Safety and Liability Law in Japan"), co-authored another, co-edited a conference volume ("The Multiple Worlds of Japanese Law"), published dozens of longer articles or book chapters as well as many shorter works, and has presented numerous conference papers and public lectures. Luke writes mostly in English or Japanese with a particular interest in comparing Japanese and other foreign law in the following areas:

- * Contract law and practice
- * Product liability and safety
- * Civil dispute resolution (especially arbitration)
- * Corporate governance
- * Information technology and law
- * Legal education